Conversation Starters: We encourage you to ask your financial professional the following questions.

Given my financial situation, should I choose an investment advisory service? Should I choose a brokerage service? Should I choose both types of services? Why or why not? How will you choose investments to recommend to me? What is your relevant experience, including your licenses, education, and other qualifications? What do these qualifications mean?

III. What fees will I pay?

There are several ways you may choose to conduct business with us and the fees will vary, depending on the type of account you choose. The five broad ways you may choose to do business with us and their corresponding fees are as follows (you may choose to participate in more than one business line).

Madison Avenue Securities, LLC

1. Fee-Based Advisory Business with a MAS Investment Advisor Representative

You may choose to open an account where instead of paying a commission for transactions, you pay a fee based on a percentage of your account value. This type of account, known as a "fee-based account" includes a fee paid to MAS for services provided. The fees are typically billed quarterly and may range from 0.5% to 2.25% per year depending on a number of factors, including account size. In our fee-based accounts you will pay either the asset-based fee only, or the asset-based fee, plus transaction charges for activity in the account. Also, certain investments (mutual funds, for example) have underlying expenses, or expense ratios. Investments in these accounts will be held at the custodian we select. For more details about these types of accounts please refer to our ADV Brochure, Part 2A.

In addition to the fees described above, certain investments held within these accounts often have their own underlying fees and expenses, sometimes referred to as expense ratios. This is common with mutual funds and ETFs. The underlying fees can vary widely from investment to investment. In some investments the expense may be 0.5% or less per year while other investments may have expenses that are 2% or more per year. We encourage you to closely review and consider these fees when making your investment decisions.

Fee-based advisory business includes an ongoing obligation on our part to monitor your investments and to advise you about their performance, including advice as to if and when your advisory accounts are no longer in your best interest.

Not all of our Representatives are able to offer this type of account.

2. Fee-Based Advisory Business with a 3rd Party Manager

In fee-based advisory accounts with a 3rd party manager, you will open an account (or accounts) directly with a company which MAS has a contract (or selling agreement) for them to provide investment services to you. Your investment will almost always be held with a custodian. With certain 3rd party managers, you are able to choose the custodian where you would like your investments held. With other 3rd party managers, you are limited to the custodian the 3rd party manager chooses. In these accounts, you will pay a fee to the 3rd party manager (and a portion of that fee will be shared with MAS) based on a percentage of the account value. The percentage you will pay will generally range from 1% to 2.5%. The fee may be higher or lower than this and will vary depending on a number of factors including account size and the 3rd party manager chosen. You may pay additional fees with these accounts as well, including annual account fees, custodian fees, transaction fees, or account opening fees. Each 3rd party manager is required to produce their own ADV Brochure Part 2A and all of their services, fees, and expenses will be described in the respective Brochure. We encourage you to review these documents before you open an account.

In addition to the fees described above, certain investments held within these accounts often have their own underlying fees and expenses, sometimes referred to as expense ratios. This is common with mutual funds and ETFs. The underlying fees can vary widely from investment to investment. In some investments the expense may be 0.5% or less per year while other investments may have expenses that are 2% or more per year. We encourage you to closely review and consider these fees when making your investment decisions.

Fee-based advisory business includes an ongoing obligation on our part to monitor your investments and to advise you about their performance, including advice as to if and when your advisory accounts are no longer in your best interest.

Not all of our Representatives are able to offer this type of account.

3. Brokerage Business

With brokerage business, you open an account or accounts with us through our clearing firm, Pershing LLC. In a brokerage account, you can buy and sell a wide variety of securities, like stocks, mutual funds, or ETFs, to name a few. In a brokerage account, you typically will pay a commission to us anytime you buy or sell an investment. Because we are paid a commission anytime you purchase or sell an investment, we have an interest in your trading more often. In addition to the trading commissions, certain account types are subject to annual custodial fees. Also, certain investments (mutual funds, for example) have underlying expenses, or expense ratios. We encourage you to review the MAS fee schedule for a listing of fees that may be applicable to brokerage accounts.

4. Direct Business with an investment issuer (also known as "Direct Business")

When you open a direct business account, you will be purchasing securities directly from the issuer. Common forms of direct business are mutual fund purchases, variable annuity purchases, or purchases of non-traded investments (such as non-traded real estate investment trusts or "REITs"). When you make these direct business purchases, it is brokerage business and we will receive a commission. As with all brokerage business, we do not provide investment monitoring services for these accounts. The commission rates typically range from 1% to 6% on mutual funds and variable annuities and from 5% to 7% on non-traded investments. Regardless of the investment you purchase, the commission or purchase charges will be detailed in the investment's prospectus or private placement memorandum ("PPM"). With certain investments, you will pay a commission to the investment issuer, (who will share all or a portion of that commission with us) reducing the amount of your investment that "goes to work" for you. For example, if there is a 5% front-end load on a mutual fund purchase, and you invest $100, $95 will go towards the investment and the remaining $5 will pay the front-end load, or commission. This is common in mutual fund A-shares and non-traded investments. In other investment products, your entire purchase amount will be invested. This is common in variable annuities. In this scenario, the issuer of the securities will pay us a commission, but the commission is not coming directly out of your purchase amount. This does not mean that these investments do not have fees – they do. However, the fees are paid over time, and are typically reflected in the performance of the investment. Generally, with direct business, the greater the investment you make, the greater the commission we will receive. Therefore, our interest may conflict with yours when you place business in these sorts of products because the more you invest, the more we are compensated. (Note that this does not typically mean that the commission rate, or percentage is higher, if you invest larger amounts. In some instances, the commission rate we receive is actually less if you invest larger amounts.)

In addition to the commissions described above, investments purchased by direct business almost always have underlying fees and expenses, sometimes referred to as expense ratios. The underlying fees can vary widely from investment to investment. In some investments the expense may be 0.5% or less per year while other investments may have expenses that are 2%, or even 3% or more per year. We encourage you to closely review the investment's prospectus or PPM to review these expenses.

5. Financial Planning Business

Instead of opening an investment account (or, often in addition to opening an account) you may also hire us to prepare a financial plan for you. The financial plan may be in the form of one or a combination of 1) an analysis of your investments, or 2) a proposal for future investments, or 3) a retirement income plan, or 4) many other types of plans. When we prepare one of these plans for you, we may charge you an hourly rate or a flat fee for the plan. We may also charge you an annual planning fee if your financial plan will require periodic updating. If you decide to purchase a financial plan, you will enter into a separate written agreement with us describing the services to be performed and the associated costs. For more details about financial planning fees please refer to our ADV Brochure, Part 2A.

Not all of our Representatives are able to offer this type of service.

You will pay fees and costs whether you make or lose money on your investments. Fees and costs will reduce any amount of money you make on your investments over time. Please make sure you understand what fees and costs you are paying.

For additional information, please see our investor fee schedule at <http://www.mas-bd.com/investor-fee-schedule>. You may also refer to FINRA's Fund Analyzer website at https://tools.finra.org/fund_analyzer/ to learn about the expenses of mutual funds and exchange traded funds.

Conversation Starters: We encourage you to ask your financial professional the following questions.

Help me understand how these fees and costs might affect my investments. If I give you $10,000 to invest, how much will go to fees and costs, and how much will be invested for me?

What are your legal obligations to me when providing recommendations as my broker-dealer or when acting as my investment adviser? How else does your firm make money and what conflicts of interest do you have?

When we provide you with a recommendation as your broker-dealer or act as your investment adviser, we have to act in your best interest and not put our interest ahead of yours. At the same time, the way we make money creates some conflicts with your interests. You should understand and ask us about these conflicts because they can affect the recommendations and investment advice we provide you. Here are some examples to help you understand what this means.

Some third party companies that we work with provide us with additional benefits in exchange for recommending their products or services. These additional benefits include revenue sharing, technology, expense sharing, and recruiting resources, to name a few. Some third party companies that we work with provide none of these additional benefits.

MAS is party to marketing or “wholesaling” arrangements with certain insurance carriers to promote the carriers’ variable annuity products. MAS receives financial incentives when we sell, through our financial professionals, products offered by these companies. These financial incentives are not shared with MAS financial professionals, but based on the firm’s incentives and additional education provided, financial professionals may recommend these variable annuity products over another not otherwise part of MAS’ wholesaling arrangement, creating a conflict of interest. MAS mediates this conflict by closely monitoring each annuity purchase for suitability and to ensure it meets the firm’s best interest standard.

Conversation Starters: We encourage you to ask your financial professional the following questions.

How might your conflicts of interest affect me, and how will you address them?

For additional information, please see our ADV Part 2A Brochure at <http://www.mas-bd.com/>.

How do your financial professionals make money?

Our financial professionals are compensated by MAS through 1) commissions for selling investments, 2) advisory fees for managing assets, 3) financial planning fees for the preparation of financial plans, or 4) a combination of the three.

Our financial professionals have a conflict when selling investments for a commission because they generally earn greater commissions the more you invest. However, our financial professionals do not receive a higher commission rate or percentage if you invest larger amounts. Our financial professionals have a conflict of interest when managing assets for a fee because the fee they earn is generally larger the larger the amount of assets they manage. An additional conflict is created because certain investments pay larger commissions than others. For example, investments that require you to hold them for a longer period of time before you can access the funds without penalty typically pay a greater commission than investments that are meant to be held for shorter periods of time. Additionally, the portion of the commission or advisory fee that our financial professionals receive from Madison is typically greater if they produce a larger volume of business with MAS.

Our financial professionals are also often compensated for sales activities that take place outside of their relationship with MAS. The most common example of this is the sale of life insurance or annuities where our financial professionals are compensated directly by insurance companies as insurance agents. Sometimes, our financial professionals may also earn “non-cash” compensation for sales of these insurance products, including vacations or other reward trips.
